Final Rites for MacArthur Set for Today

By RAYMOND J. CROWL

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Soldier Douglas MacArthur is to his earthly resting place today as cannon — the like which he had heard on many a battlefield — roar a salute.

With the prayers and sad notes of Taps the nation pays its ceremonial farewell as the legendary general of the Army is laid to rest in a crypt in the MacArthur Memorial in this seaport his mother's hometown.

There still was one more journey for the old warrior.

From the memorial where he has lain in state as thousands passed in homage, his flag-draped casket will be carried two blocks for funeral services at St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

As the caisson, drawn by dark horses, rolls past, solemn lines of troops lower in salute the colors of all the states and territories and of the 26 Army units MacArthur, 84, was associated with in his long years of war and peace.

The church service was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. and end a half-hour later.

After the return to the memorial, the benediction and a 19-gun salute, there sounds the three volleys of rifle fire and the notes of Taps.

Then as the band plays patriotic music the flag is to be removed from the casket and presented to the general's widow, Jean, escorted by her son, Arthur, 28.

Representing President Johnson at the services is Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, who less than five months ago saw his brother, President John F. Kennedy, buried with similar honors.

After the ceremony, the memorial will be closed until 1 p.m. Sunday when it again will be opened to the public.

MacArthur could have been buried in Arlington National Cemetery, the resting place of so many of the nation's heroes. But in remembrance of his mother, who was born here, he wanted to be buried in Norfolk.

The city refashioned a 114-year old courthouse to hold his papers, his mementos, including the many pipes he smoked.

In long lines, citizens — some with babies in arms — came Friday to pass before the bier.

As they moved through the rotunda of the memorial they saw emblazoned on the circular walls the names of his campaigns — beginning with Vera Cruz, Mexico, in 1914, and ending with Yalu, on the Red Chinese border.

To bring history around to one of its remarkable turning points, many high-stationed Japanese were in today's funeral audience.

They came to pay tribute because this American occupation commander after World War II dealt with them leniently and tried to teach them the ways of democracy.

MacArthur died Sunday.

Charged Jurist in Statement

By HAL BOYLE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Supreme Court Justice Earl Welch, indicted by a federal grand jury on income tax evasion charges, issued a statement Thursday night declaring himself innocent.

The jurist, who has served 32 years on Oklahoma's highest court, also predicted he will be cleared quickly by a jury trial.

Both Welch, 72, and former Supreme Court Justice N. S. Corn, 80, were indicted on charges of income tax evasion.

The judges, both Democrats, are free on $5,000 bond. Their arraignment has not been set.

With the Majority

WASHINGTON (AP) — All four Arkansas Representatives voted with the majority Wednesday when the House passed, 229-189, the federal food stamp bill.

Congressman E. C. (Took) Gathings, Oren Harris, Wilbur Mills and James Trimble voted in favor of the measure.

Warren Group Ends Dallas Talks

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Warren commission representatives in Dallas ended their phase of investigation Thursday and returned to Washington.

The team of attorneys questioned more than 200 persons since March 19, including witnesses to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the slayings of Lee Harvey Oswald and patrolman J. D. Tippit.

Two other attorneys from the commission are expected to arrive Tuesday for a different phase of investigation.

Diary Tells of Capture of Jeff Davis

By RICHARD WHALEN

NEW YORK (AP) — A diary found in a Michigan attic bids fair to stir up an old feud among Civil War buffs over the capture of Jefferson Davis. The diary contains a first-hand account of the event.

Davis, president of the Confederate States of America, was wearing woman's clothing when Union troops took him prisoner near Irwinville, Ga., on May 10, 1865. The puzzle that has divided historians is whether the cloak and shawl Davis admitted having worn were intended to be a disguise.

At the time, many people in the North made Davis, a courtly and stern gentleman, the butt of derision and ridicule. Cartoons of the day lampooned him in a woman's dress.

Davis wrote that he grabbed his wife's cloak and shawl in a darkened tent as his pursuers closed in.

The diary of Lt. Col. Benjamin Pritchard gives this account of the day:

"One o'clock a.m. Have just arrived at Irwinville (sic). Moon is shining brightly. Have examined the roads. At 3 1/2 o'clock a.m. moved up, captured the whole camp without firing a shot, which proved to be Jeff Davis (who attempted to make his escape in disguise of an old woman, fit ending for such a cause as his), together with his family, and portions of his civil and military staff. Soon after capture had a very (sic) sad and unfortunate collision with 1st Wis Cav in which several men were wounded & two killed, either of whom was worth more than the whole Southern Confederacy."

The diary and 75 of 100 other items of Pritchard's papers were sold at auction recently by John Fox who said tips led him to the papers in trunks in the house Pritchard built in Allegan, Mich. He said Dudley H. Pritchard, the Civil War officer's grandson, lives there.

Until now, one of the main pieces of evidence that Davis was disguised in woman's clothing was Pritchard's account 15 days later to Secretary of War Edwin Stanton. Pritchard's copy of this document is among the papers auctioned.

Prisoner Ends Hunger Strike

MEMPHIS (AP) — Clyde Caldwell, 28, Manila, Ark., ended an 18-day hunger strike in the Shelby County Jail Thursday but vowed he would "keep on fighting for my cause."

Caldwell, serving a 60-day jail sentence on a charge of carrying a pistol, said he had tried to petition U.S. District Court for a writ of habeas corpus "but they (jail authorities) won't let my mails get out."

Sid Hall, assistant chief jailer, denied the charge.

Caldwell said he ended his hunger strike because he was losing too much weight. In addition to his sentence Caldwell also has to work out a $50 fine and court costs. He is due for release June 21.

The Fact Remains That Pearls or Emeralds Are Pretty Fair Little Gadgets to Have

Court Reshaping the Cude Case

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court decides today whether three children can rejoin their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie T. B. Cude Sr., on a western Arkansas farm until the U.S. Supreme Court determines if Cude must have the children vaccinated so they can attend school.

The children, Wayne, 12, Delia, 11, and Linda May, 8, have been the guests of Gov. Orval E. Faubus in the governor's mansion here for three days.

The State Supreme Court ruled Monday that Cude could not deny the children an education because vaccination against smallpox is against his religious beliefs. The court affirmed a lower court order directing the State Welfare Department to take the children, have them vaccinated and enrolled in school and return them to Cude.

Cude said he wouldn't take the children back if they were vaccinated. Faubus took the children into his home Tuesday to keep them from going to a welfare home.

The month of April means a lot of things to us such as blooming flowers, refreshing rain, and colorful, lighter weight clothes. But that's annual and not the least bit unusual. This year, however, something additional will take place for about 70 million people — the number of estimated visitors to the New York World's Fair which opens on April 22.

The fair will be the showcase for large and small nations alike, and all will hope to acquaint the millions of visitors with the opportunities and attributes which their lands offer. During the two years the fair is in progress one of its hoped-for goals is to further the cause of "peace through understanding."

This could possibly be achieved, too, for in the midst of miracle kitchens, modern transportation, and magnificent entertainment, religion will have an important enclave, according to a recent publication of "Awake."

The Masonic order will have a crescent-shaped building, and those viewing it will enter under a 60-foot-high arch formed by the square and the compass, the Masonic symbol. Like the other participants, the Masons want the world to know them better and feel that a World's Fair is a perfect place to "get acquainted."

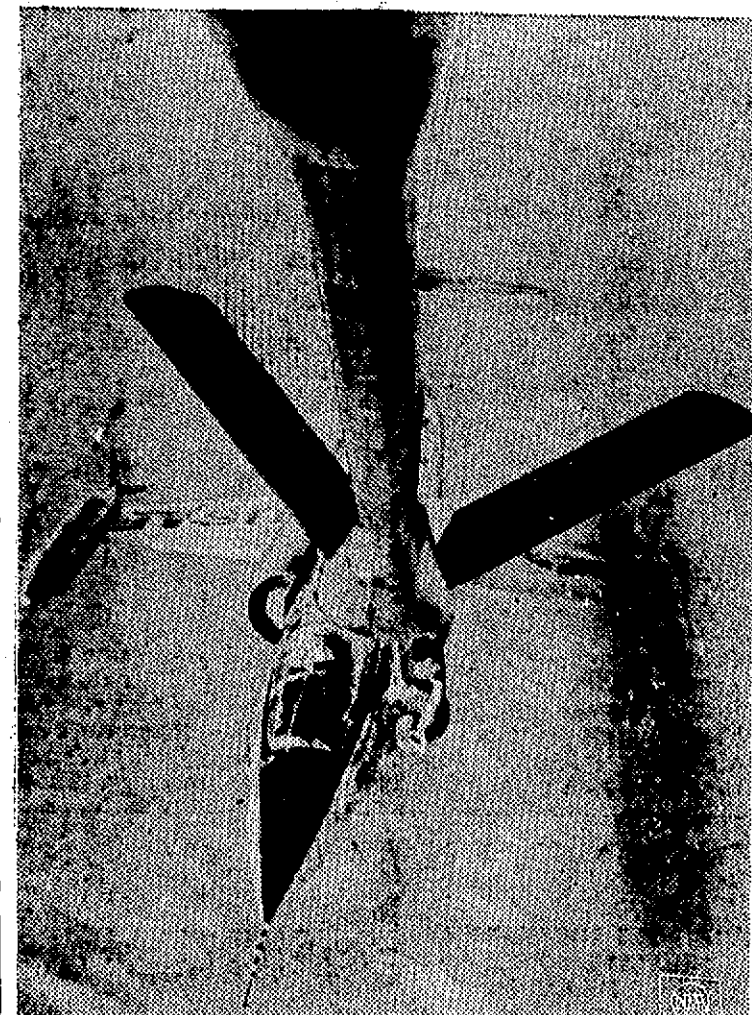

The mormon exhibit will be surrounded by a 120-foot-high replica of the front facade of the Mormon Temple in Salt Lake City. Their exhibition halls will display two huge murals, each 110 feet long and 9 feet high, depicting the life of Jesus Christ and the birth and growth of the Mormon religion.

For Bible scholars, and those who some day hope to be, the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan will feature the Dead Sea Scrolls and a 35-foot column from Jerash. The Vatican Pavilion, which cost $3,800,000, will highlight Michelangelo's Pieta, the marble sculpture of Jesus in the arms of Mary. The $3 million Protestant and Orthodox Center will display the charred cross of the Coventry Cathedral in England, which was saved from destruction in World War II.

The Christian Science Pavilion will rise 35 feet in the form of a seven-pointed star, while the Billy Graham Pavilion resembles a revival meeting tent. They and all the other religious exhibits appropriately depict symbols for which they stand and are best known.

Under the symbol of the Universe some 40 nations will exhibit in about 150 pavilions and an additional 300 sub-exhibitors will be in multiple buildings. Fortunately, mankind has at last realized that in the center of industry, education, and recreation there must be religion, whether it is at a World's Fair or in everyday life.

The Month of April Means Many Things to Many People — Many to See World's Fair

Thresher Down Year Ago Today

EDITOR'S NOTE—One year ago today, the nuclear submarine Thresher plunged to its grave in the waters of the Atlantic east of Boston. The loss of the Thresher and its crew of 129 was the greatest submarine disaster in American naval history.

By JAMES CALOGERO
PORTSMOUTH, N.H. (AP) — To many, this is a date of quiet solemnity, for a year ago today the United States suffered its greatest single submarine disaster.

On the morning of April 10, 1963, the nuclear submarine Thresher sank in the Atlantic 220 miles east of Boston with the loss of 129 lives.

In war and in peace, never have so many men perished in one American submarine. The Navy says that the men of the Thresher did not die in vain.

Out of her loss, say Navy officials in Washington, came new techniques in design and a new approach to underwater salvage studies.

The Thresher and her men lie on the ocean bottom in water a mile and a half deep.

Debris from the Thresher has been photographed and even recovered and the Navy has an underwater picture of her prow — but the hull itself has never been located.

From Thresher's loss came the formation of the deep submergence systems review group under Rear Adm. Edward C. Stephan.

"Our ability to operate on the ocean floor and in its depths is at a level corresponding to that of aviation about 1910," he said.

"The entire undersea area will have a tremendous effect upon future military operations."

The Navy has but one vehicle which can reach the depth in which Thresher lies—a fragile-looking bathyscaphe.

The first of its kind, Trieste made several dives in the area of Thresher's loss and came up with a number of photographs of debris, identified as from the broken submarine.

A new, improved bathyscaphe, Trieste II, is due from San Diego, Calif., next month to make new attempts to locate Thresher.

No public observances were planned for this first anniversary of the tragic loss, but the Navy remembered each family.

The book will go only to the next of kin of Thresher's 129 victims.

Cude Children Return Home to Parents

MENA, Ark. (AP) — Three children left the governor's mansion in Little Rock, returned home to a 65-acre farm in western Arkansas and said they were glad to be back.

Wayne Cude, 12, and his sisters Delia Marie, 11, and Linda May, 8, were back with their parents after a four-day stay with Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Faubus' wife, Alta, who had cared for the children, kissed them good-bye on the steps of the mansion Friday.

"The Faubuses are pretty nice people," Wayne said. "Extra nice. But I missed home cooking. And mostly Momma and Daddy."

Archie T. B. Cude Sr. kept the three children out of school because the school board insisted they have a smallpox vaccination. He says reading the Bible has taught him that use of medicines makes one spiritually impure. Faith in God is all that is needed to be healed, he claims.

State law requires children to attend school until they reach the age of 16 or complete the eighth grade, ruled Chancellor Wesley Howard of Texarkana.

The Arkansas Supreme Court, upholding Howard's ruling, ordered the State Welfare Department to place the three youngsters in a foster home, vaccinate them, enroll them in school and then take them home.

But Faubus took the children to the mansion, and, through Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett, worked out an arrangement by which the children could return home until the state vs. religion conflict is settled.

Cude says he will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Arkansas court refused Friday to rescind its order, but it said the children could go home if Howard consented.

Cude vows he will not accept the children if the state vaccinates them.

The Cudes have five other children who were too young or too old to be affected by the Arkansas compulsory attendance law.

Another Resigns at Conway School

CONWAY, Ark. (AP) — Miss Ivah Kuykendall, 63, senior member of the teaching and administrative personnel of the Conway school system, resigned Thursday, saying she was considered to controversial.

She resigned as principal of Ellen Smith Elementary School, a position she held for 25 years.

H. L. Stanfill of Osceola, who recently accepted an offer to be superintendent of schools here, declined comment.

Miss Kuykendall said Stanfill told her she was controversial, and "in the best interests of the people of this district, I should not remain in the system."

The National Education Association is investigating a controversy which has resulted in the resignations of two other principals — Wilburn V. Smith last year and Hal Robbins March 25.

Supt. Hays Gibson's contract, due to expire in 1965, was purchased by the school board for $10,000.

Khrushchev Off to Moscow

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev left by train for Moscow today after a ten-day visit during which he repeatedly blasted the Chinese Communists.

Khrushchev warmly embraced Hungarian party chief Janos Kadar before boarding the train, and said he was very satisfied with his Hungarian visit. "We have reached complete understanding on all questions," he said.

Although he made no new attacks on the Red Chinese in his farewell statement, the Soviet premier said: "We discussed in detail questions related to strengthening the great Socialist community and the unity of oneness of the Communist and labor movements."

Khrushchev will be surrounded in Moscow by Communist leaders for at least six nations celebrating his 70th birthday next Friday. The gathering likely will develop into an important conference on Moscow's next move in the dispute with Peking.

Laws Ban Sale Inferior Meat

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas has two laws to prohibit sale of inferior meat as U.S. government inspected beef.

Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett advised Andrews Little, director of the Division of Weights and Measures, that a 1963 law creating the division would cover the advertising or sale of inferior meat at a higher grade than it actually is.

This situation also is covered by the state Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, which has several provisions concerning false advertising, Little was advised.

In another opinion Davis Duty, chief attorney at Rogers, was advised that annexation of city-owned land outside the city limits must be handled exactly as any other annexation.

Mildred Browne, city clerk at Trumann, was advised that she will be eligible to run to succeed herself in the November general election. She was appointed to the post recently to fill an unexpired term.

Reliable sources reported administration officials are highly optimistic of a voluntary agreement.

But, the sources said, this does not mean the administration would let the 15 days slip by without preparing emergency legislation as a last resort if necessary.

State Rail Men on Strike a Few Hours

By BILL SIMMONS

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Some 1,000 railroad union members went on strike for 4 1/2 hours in Arkansas today before receiving scheduled nation-wide strike and had been delayed at least 65 days.

But word came through at 4:30 a.m. from union headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, and Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and the strike ended before the state felt the full impact of it.

The strike would not have reached giant proportions until mid-morning. Most of the men notified the strike were not scheduled to go on duty until after 7 a.m., and they went to work as usual after formal notification came through.

Carl N. Hope, state representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said the men had acted according to instructions.

"We weren't told to listen to a radio, or watch TV, or wait for the newspapers to hit the street to find out whether we were going on strike," Hope said. "We were told to go, and we went."

"We were told to wait for official union notification that it was off, and we waited."

J. C. Peterson, chairman of the joint strike committee composed of the BRT and two other unions, said up to 1,000 men were notified to strike the Arkansas Division of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The strike committee included G. E. Billingsley, local chairman of Division 131 of the Order of Railroad Conductors and Brakemen, Carl Watts, chairman of Lodge 49 of the BRT, and Peterson, chairman of Locak 45 of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

The Cotton Belt Railroad, which operates only freights, was only barely affected by the strike.

W. J. Lacy, assistant general superintendent, said in Pine Bluff that 10 train crews — 60 men—were affected. The trains were delayed from one to three hours at Pine Bluff and Jonesboro, Lacy said.

The Cotton Belt union members got word at 3:15 a.m. that the strike had been called off, and operations resumed, Lacy said.

He said Cotton Belt operations in Jonesboro, Pine Bluff and Texarkana were affected.

Peterson said Missouri Pacific operations were affected in Little Rock, North Little Rock, Paragould, Helena, Wynne, Newport, Fort Springs, Gurdon, Hope, Texarkana, El Dorado, and Memphis.

Lacy said the Cotton Belt freight Manifest was held up in both Pine Bluff and Jonesboro. The Manifest runs from Corsicana, Tex., to St. Louis, Mo.

Hot Springs, Ark. (AP) — Horace Raymond Chunn, 46, of Hot Springs, burned to death in his truck on a street here Thursday night.

Officers said Chunn's truck struck a bridge rail, overturned and caught fire. The truck skidded 193 feet on its side before bursting into flame, police said.

Chicken or Egg - Which Comes First

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — For 30 years the government and the stock exchanges have wrangled off and on over a chicken-or-the-egg type of question: Which comes first, the interest of the exchange member or of the public investor?

And now the Securities and Exchange Commission is taking a step it thinks will make sure that the ordinary trader in stocks gets served in the market place before the stock exchange members can serve themselves—or at least just as fast.

But the new rules curbing activities on the New York Stock Exchange of floor traders acting for themselves alone instead of for the public investor probably are only just a skirmish in the continuing battle over the rules of the nation's exchanges and of the SEC role in policing them more strictly.

The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 set up the SEC and gave it the power to "regulate or prevent floor trading by members of national securities exchanges, directly or indirectly for their own account or for discretionary accounts."

Isle's Gooney Birds Take to Jaywalking

By MALCOLM BARR

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—Midway Island's gooney birds have taken to jay-walking since the Seabees bounced them out of their nests.

The comical gooneys on the mid-Pacific atoll—whose ranks were thinned by a recent extermination program—now are sending out scouts to oversee paving operations aimed to keep them off Navy runways.

The scouts, crossing in front of or marching slowly ahead of heavy Seabee equipment, are keeping Navy men hopping. Sailors are detailed to walk ahead of graders, tractors and heavy shovels. Their job is to pick up the waddling gooneys and carry them out of harm's way.

For years, a colony of about 250,000 gooneys—the Blackfoot or Laysan albatross—have held squatter's rights on Midway. Their habit of building nests beside Navy runways and of cruising gracefully in take-off and landing patterns caused thousands of dollars damage to planes when they collided with the large birds. The Navy also became concerned about the danger to airmen.

Earlier this year, after years of study by scientists and biologists, the Navy initiated a two-pronged program to get the gooneys out of their hair. They gassed and killed 20,000 birds in nests beside the runways, then began hard-topping the area so other gooneys could not take their place.

The project won the blessing of Audubon Society officials. The plan has gone well, although the curious gooneys that insist on walking in front of equipment have slowed the job slightly.

Navy men are hopeful, however, that they've at last found a way of keeping their runways and aircraft approaches clear. When the Seabees finish the paving—and if the gooneys run true to form—birds returning to their original nesting ground will be unable to build nests. These normally consist of loose sand and ironwood needles, no longer available on the hard-topped surface.

Thus, the Navy is crossing its collective fingers that it finally has conquered the lovable gooneys, some of which are household pets among the 3,000 servicemen and their families on lonely Midway.

But knowing the gooney as the Navy knows the gooney, those responsible for the current project aren't yet counting their—er—chickens.

For example, let's take a two-fisted, tough business executive. That is, he seems tough to everyone externally. But unconsciously, and even he doesn't realize it, he'd like to be a carded-for child again. Would he admit it? Never. But deep psychoanalysis would soon show it.

He can't return to childhood, of course, even if he was aware of the desire, and still boss people in his big job. So, his unconscious tries to fulfill his desire by substitution, and it drives him toward a timid, frail girl whom he can enjoy sheltering.

It's a strong, unconscious message, but his conscious gets the point. How is he relieving his own frustration? He is taking care of her as a child-figure, and by proxy he is revealing his would-be other self. Bizarre No, it's an actual case, and there are many like it, but with different personalities playing this desire—substitute role dictated by their unconscious.

But now for a moment, go across the room, and look at his timid, frail wife. What does she see in him and why does the timid woman usually go for the brash, self-assured man in the first place?

If you could X-ray her feelings, you'd find that she always yearned to be more aggressive and competent. Meeting this aggressive type of executive, she sees her own needs mirrored in his go-getting personality. So, in a very satisfying way, she achieves them by marrying him, even though she reaches goal vicariously. So, each meets the other's unconscious needs, and here love, basically

Going broke keeping yourself in nylons? Here's some sage advice from Lowell Wilkin, head of a leading hosiery firm. Watch out for hot ashes (left). They can send your stockings to the hosiery graveyard in a hurry. Turn your ring toward the palm of your hand if you can't remove it when examining nylons (top inset). Diamonds may be a girl's best friend, but they're not on speaking terms with your stockings. They'll catch and cause rips. For longer stocking life, make sure you fasten garters on the welt of the hose (lower inset), not below it. Another hint to the wise—today's compact cars require a special technique for getting in and out if you want to avoid runs. Sit down in the driver's seat with your legs outside the car (right). Then turn your body slowly into driving position.

MARRIAGES ARE MADE IN SUBCONSCIOUS, NOT HEAVEN

By D.R. JOYCE BROTHERS

Why do we pick the mates we do in marriage? It is one of the most important steps we take in our whole lifetime, yet very few people could say exactly on what basis they made their decision.

The real reasons for our choice in mates are complex. Most people don't understand them because 90 per cent of our motivations about a mate go on in our unconscious.

Our conscious gets the message, all right, but it is in simple telegraph form, such as, "This man is right for you." Then we either act or we don't. What I'm going to tell you about our mate-selection may surprise you. It's often so exciting we are carried away by the emotion.

As a starting point, let's look at love. That is, between a man and woman. Love hasn't the motives you think it does. You can blame fiction and poetry for misleading us. Writers would have us believe love is some sort of mystical union of similar spirits. Or, from a man's side, a noble desire to protect and serve woman—a sort of King Arthur's chivalry up-dated.

The mechanics of love are no such thing. Psychologists have found the love of a man for a woman and vice versa is basically self-serving, and in fact, it is in many ways selfish.

How do we go about picking a marriage partner. By some mystic process? Not at all. Our unconscious makes the decision, and it propels us in what we feel is the right direction. And this right direction, as the unconscious sees it, it toward someone whose personality is the complement of our own. That is, someone through whom we can relieve our own frustrations, and by substitution live out our own otherwise impossible wishes.

Wife Is Other Self

For example, let's take a two-fisted, tough business executive. That is, he seems tough to everyone externally. But unconsciously, and even he doesn't realize it, he'd like to be a carded-for child again. Would he admit it? Never. But deep psychoanalysis would soon show it.

He can't return to childhood, of course, even if he was aware of the desire, and still boss people in his big job. So, his unconscious tries to fulfill his desire by substitution, and it drives him toward a timid, frail girl whom he can enjoy sheltering.

It's a strong, unconscious message, but his conscious gets the point. How is he relieving his own frustration? He is taking care of her as a child-figure, and by proxy he is revealing his would-be other self. Bizarre No, it's an actual case, and there are many like it, but with different personalities playing this desire—substitute role dictated by their unconscious.

But now for a moment, go across the room, and look at his timid, frail wife. What does she see in him and why does the timid woman usually go for the brash, self-assured man in the first place?

If you could X-ray her feelings, you'd find that she always yearned to be more aggressive and competent. Meeting this aggressive type of executive, she sees her own needs mirrored in his go-getting personality. So, in a very satisfying way, she achieves them by marrying him, even though she reaches goal vicariously. So, each meets the other's unconscious needs, and here love, basically selfish in motive, is entirely satisfying, and the marriage eminently successful. Their friends say they were meant for each other, but they don't know quite why. But you can see why, now.

There's Really Love At First Sight

Our psychoanalytic studies show that this dove-tailing of opposite needs is, in fact, the basic mechanism of attraction. And of course, this union of unconscious needs is further realized and consummated by sex.

And our recent studies have put something else in a lesser, and more proper, perspective. They show that physical desire, beauty, and our similar preferences are all rather minor compared to the pull of these dove-tailing personality needs, driven toward fulfillment by our unconscious. From here, we can start our explanations.

For instance, what we often call our "love-image," the mental picture we have in advance of our ideal mate. We are simply imputing the complementary qualities we are searching for in a certain type of appearance. And this is what causes love-at-first-sight; an immediate visual bridge between ourselves and what we think we want in a mate.

But why is love-at-first-sight so dangerous in choosing a mate?

Because there hasn't been time to sense each other's real unconscious drives. You discover it in marriage, and the discovery may end in divorce. Then, too, once you understand this cause and effect of love-attraction, it's rather easy to understand a whole series of our other romantic reactions.

But first, it gives still more of an answer to one of our most familiar questions: What does he see in her?

For instance, a sharp tongue in a woman will signal outright bossiness to one man, but an attractive and sexy challenge to another.

And what about this basic theory of love holds right down the line. Take a woman who marries a man to reform him. Basically, she's a crusader, and he likes the idea of being crusaded. It's fun and a challenge to both of them.

Game Never Ends

Happily, the crusader by type usually picks a partner who can't be readily reformed as she would like. Her unconscious is looking for difficulties, and picks a chronic alcoholic as a likely candidate. He has an addiction which isn't easy to cure by any standards. But actually this works out fine for her.

Her unconscious was on the right track. She can act out the enjoyable role of reformer for years and years, since her cock-tail-prone spouse never becomes the upright, sober man she thinks she wants. Instead, he remains what she unconsciously really needs. That is a grown-up and real-life drunk to abuse, forgive, and then re-accuse, and therefore feel self-righteous about in comparison. The cause? Negative, unconscious choice on purpose.

The alcoholic's reaction to her crusading? Absolutely fine. He probably has a guilt-complex about what he does, so he's enjoying her righteous reprimands. Besides, he probably needs all this attention.

One of the major reasons for marital discord and infidelity today is the combination of two personalities with the same unconscious needs, neither fulfilling each other. For instance, a man who wants to be a boss, and his wife who does, too.

Fulbright's Mailbox Is Overflowing

By GORDON BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The mailbox in the office of Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., is overflowing since he called for a re-examination of the country's foreign policy and urging discard of "old myths."

In the first 10 days after he delivered the March 25 speech in an almost empty Senate chamber, he received over 6,000 letters and telegrams.

Fulbright's staff says the letters, by a 4-1 margin, approve his stand.

But of the less than 100 letters he has received from Arkansas, opinion is divided about 50-50.

For the most part the letters from his state that disagree with the speech are reasoned and mild although there is a smattering of the vicious and vituperative.

The latter, to quote those portions that are printable, contain such phrases as:

"America's enemy has struck again..." signed "disgusting."

"You are too liberal to be a senator of this great free country."

"You are a disgrace to Arkansas — I will never vote for you."

Then there were these excerpts from Arkansians who agreed with Fulbright:

"Your speech was wonderful and badly needed."

"Too much of our thinking as a nation has become inflexible."

"It was only to be expected that those who never have any constructive thoughts and use their emotions rather than logic would froth at the mouth about your clear analysis of the situation with respect to Cuba and other aspects of U.S. foreign policy."

Fulbright had so many requests for copies of the talk that he ordered 15,000 printed. These are going fast and he plans no reprint since his funds for this purpose are low.

Fulbright's aides say the mail obviously is spontaneous — that it shows no evidence of any organized effort to praise or condemn him. However, they expect publications of some of the ultra right-wing groups to assail him. The aides are braced for a flood of unfavorable mail from readers of those publications.

Much of what has been written about the speech concerns what Fulbright said about Cuba and Castro. This point also has been mentioned in many of the letters he has received.

In the speech, Fulbright said of Cuba and Castro:

"In recent years we have become transfixed with Cuba, making it far more important in both our foreign relations and in our domestic life than its size and influence warrant."

"We have flattered a noisy but minor demagogue by treating him as if he were a Napoleonic menace. Communist Cuba has been a disruptive and subversive influence in the hemisphere, and there is no doubt that both we and our Latin American partners would be better off if the Castro regime

What happens? They both have their eyes open for more satisfying partners.

No National GOP Funds for Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Southern Division of the Republican National Committee will not help Winthrop Rockefeller financially in his campaign for governor of Arkansas.

I. Lee Potter, director, said the committee does not contribute funds for state campaigns, but other forms of aid are available.

Potter said no aid would come until after the Republican primary, when it is certain that Rockefeller is the GOP nominee.

Potter said the other aid available to Rockefeller includes trained workers to set up precinct operations, speakers and research personnel.

Water Garden at Greers Ferry Dam

HEBER SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The first water garden of any magnitude to be built by Army Engineers may be constructed on a 20-acre site near Greers Ferry Dam here.

Sens. J. William Fulbright and John L. McClellan, D-Ark., have introduced a $250,000 appropriations bill for the garden. Fulbright persuaded the late President Kennedy to have engineers draw preliminary plans for the facility.

Fulbright views the project as an illustration of esthetic possibilities at government dams and reservoirs — to attract persons who aren't interested in camp-did not exist.

"But it is important to bear in mind that, despite their best efforts, the Cuban Communists have not succeeded in subverting the hemisphere and that in Venezuela, for example, where communism has made a major effort to gain power through terrorism, it has been repudiated by a people who in a free election have committed themselves to the course of liberal democracy."

"It is necessary to weigh the desirability of an objective against the feasibility of its attainment and when we do this with respect to Cuba, I think we are bound to conclude that Castro is a nuisance but not a grave threat to the United States and that he cannot be gotten rid of except by means that are wholly disproportionate to the objective."

"Cuban communism does pose a grave threat to other Latin American countries, but this threat can be dealt with by prompt and vigorous use of the established procedures of the inter-American system against any act of aggression."

Thinks Popularity of Johnson Down

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The popularity of President Johnson is dropping in Arkansas, Gov. Orval E. Faubus said today, but the latest polls show he still has a commanding lead over any opponent.

Cause of the decline in the President's image, Faubus said, is the civil rights issue.

"And the reason for his continued strength," Faubus added, "is that a lot of people think he doesn't have any alternative but to push the civil rights legislation."

Faubus explained that Johnson is committed to civil rights because of respect for the late President Kennedy who initiated the program and because of the national vote picture which demands that a president candidate be strong for civil rights.

Water Isolated Mississippi Town

LAUREL, Miss. (AP) — Residents of this southeastern Mississippi city—hit by its worst flooding on record—faced the weary task today of returning to homes isolated two days by waters spilled over from rain swollen creeks.

More than 3,000 residents of lowlands were made homeless. Since Tuesday, they have been staying in shelters set up by the Laurel and Jones County Red Cross. A national disaster worker and a building supervisor of the American Red Cross said damage could run into the millions of dollars.

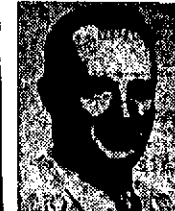

Water stood in parts of the city from one to 10 feet deep. In Meridian, most of the waters have receded after an almost record rainfall of close to 10 inches.

No deaths or injuries have been reported.

ing, fishing and water sports.

The garden would be built in a ravine 2,000 feet from the dam with a stream flowing through it.

Famed New York architect Edward D. Stone, formerly of Fayetteville, has agreed to aid in design of the garden.

When they were ready he slipped back and with a hand-spring called in the girl and Papago. Just as they were about to squeeze past the mules he said, keeping his voice down: "Any ore you wanta take along in yer clothes you can keep without dividin', but it'll sure git heavier with every mile you lug it."

"Thanks for nothing," Belita said, grimacing, and squirmed on by without so much as a look. Medders stepped aside to let the school boy through, but education got the best of Eddie. He stopped by the last split-open pack, fastened his pants-legs tight at the ankles, unloosed his belt and filled both sides to bulging.

Medders got the Sharps, slung his canteen over a shoulder, and followed. The boy was making rough work of the rockpile. Belita was just scrambling down the far side when Medders, relieving Eddie Two-Cows of his Henry repeater, let go a deep sigh and started shooting mules.

The others, with Begetta, stood waiting at the summit, and he was just coming up with them when a rattle of rifleshoots jerked him around, to find Eddie staggering into a run, to see him knocked off his feet with his mouth stretched in a yell that never came, and Burks' bunch back of him swarming onto the rock jam. He pulled the Sharps' sight up as far as it would go, clapped the stock to his shoulder and hauled back on the trigger.

The solid boom of that buffalo gun cut through lesser sounds like the crash of a cannon. One of Burks' rannies went down as though swept from his knees by a scythe. Crazy Medders stood pouring lead into them, firing as fast as he could cram in the shells. One fellow spun, taking another guy with him. One, almost clear, fell with both arms flopping. The rest fled.

When Charlie, still fuming, came up with Belita, the girl said, "Is that it?" The whole world, it seemed like, was spread out below them. Following her look Charlie, glowering nodded.

Notwithstanding the bitter thoughts they kept chewing,

Two Honored by Governor Faubus

BRINKLEY, Ark. (AP) - A Negro educator and a late state senator were honored by Gov. Orval E. Faubus in his dedication of a new dormitory for the Fargo Training School for Negro girls here Thursday.

The $200,000 structure, to house 24 girls, is named for the late state Sen. Tom Allen of Brinkley.

Faubus praised Allen for his work in industrializing Arkansas, establishing the Graduate Institute of Technology at Little Rock, and getting Fargo Training School into the state system in 1954.

Floyd Brown, a Negro educator, organized the training school in 1919.

Most children in correctional institutions are there because of failings of their parents, and not themselves, Faubus said.

"That's the reason I don't like to see children taken away from excellent parents simply because the parents have odd beliefs," he said.

I Believe

"Except ye become as a little child—" Oh, for the faith of that child; your child, my child. FAITH that sees beyond the faults and foibles of men; FAITH that rises above the animosities and hatreds of nations; FAITH that overcomes the cruelties of tyrants and sufferings of war. Oh, ye of little FAITH, know ye not that there's a child in the midst? A child praying for daddy, and mommy and her church. A child believing that the whole round world is bound by chains about the feet of God. This child BELIEVES. She goes to CHURCH, WON'T YOU?

THE CHURCHES OF THIS COMMUNITY ARE THE ONLY INSTITUTIONS WHICH HAVE AS THEIR MAIN FUNCTION, THE TRANSFORMING OF HUMAN LIVES. THEY ARE THE SIGN BOARDS POINTING THE WAY TO GOD.

Sponsors of these messages urge faithful church support. Through these pages the appeal is for all men to stand up and be counted . . . to combat Communism on all fronts . . . to be faithful to God.

OUR PASTORS ARE GOD'S SERVANTS WHO CALL THE SIGNALS AGAINST THE ORGANIZED FORCES OF EVIL. THEY INVITE YOU TO ENLIST ON THE SIDE FOR GOD . . .
